Introduction

3.1 Background

This chapter offers an introduction to the thesis and typically introduces the problem, the research question and delimitations.

It can be nice to include figures already in this first chapter. A picture of a pipe is given in Figure 3.1. Also cross-references are used if you want to jump directly to the conclusion in section 7.

Bab 4

Methods

This chapter is about methodology and discusses research strategies, data collection methods and data analysis methods. A simple overview of the relationships between these is given in Figure 4.1.

Results

This chapter can present the results of the study. Tables are often helpful for presenting results. For example, have a look at Table 5.1.

Author	Title	Publication Year
Gottlob Frege	Begriffsschrift	1879
Bertrand Russell	Principia Mathematica	1910
Ludwig Wittgenstein	Philosophical Investigations	1953

Tabel 5.1: Philosophical Titles 1

The same data are shown in Table 5.2 but with different formatting.

Note about referencing: In LaTex, literature references are handled by creating a BibTeX file and referring to it. From Google Scholar, you can grab BibTeX references by clicking on "Import into BibTeX" below a search result. You can also generate BibTeX files from reference managers, such as Mendeley, Paperpile or Zotero.
