Short section about myself. Header profile sectionIt's possible to hide the profile picture using \makeheaderprofilenoimg instead than \makeheaderprofile (you could remove \profilepic{image.png} then). Info profile sectionThe command \makeinfoprofile doesn't use empty macros \cvsite*{} (e.g. \cvsitepersonal{} instead than \cvsitepersonal{example.com}). About the info profile commandsIf not empty the \cvaddressurl{} command create a custom hyperlink containing the \cvaddress{Address, Nation} text. Same for \cvskypeurlbase{jo and \cvskypeurl{skype-username} (visit https://support.skype.com/en/faq/FA34802/skype FAQs) to create an invite url.

1 Bibliography

Three different commands:

- A bold word made with the \textbf{}
- A gray phrase made with the \graytext{} command instead than overriding \bfseries like before
- A red phrase made with the \textcolor{}{} command (the first argument is the color, the second one is the text).

Side footerNow there are three commands to populate the side footer:

- `\makefooterprofile`, the old way to create a custom side footer (it takes two mandatory arguments)
- `\makefootersidenode`, useful for creating the same footer on all existing pages
- `\makefootersidenodevfill`

Use the commands `\pagenumber{}{}` and `\textfootersidenote{}{}` to add the page number (e.g. "Page 2 of 2") and the side footer text.

Progress bar skill sectionsThe command `\customskills{Section title}{{},{},{}}{}` take three argument (the last one is optional). The first argument is the section title, e.g. `Languages`. The second macro argument is an array of couples made by words and float numbers separated by slashes, e.g. `{{Latin/4.3},{Greek/6}}`; the number of course represents how much the skill ability is high. This array separator is a comma. Note that the array order is reversed: in the output list created by the example above has the word "Greek" before "Latin".
